

THE NEW ERA IN GLASS

F O R E W O R D

More than one hundred years ago—in 1818 to be exact—four farseeing, enterprising New England business men banded themselves together to form what is now The Libbey Glass Manufacturing Company.

The high business principles, the wholesome respect for craftsmanship and the spirit of friendliness which characterized all of their activities, have lived on down through the years. And today, in the fifth generation of this business, the same enduring ideals prevail.

The pages of this catalog are a vivid confirmation of our regard for real craftsmanship. They reveal what is destined, we believe, to be the beginning of a New Era in Glass. On them you will see illustrated things that have never before been done in glass. You will see not only the highest point that has yet been attained in the glassmaker's art, but the practical application of that art to the production of merchandise that will sell.

For convenient reference we have arranged this catalog into five divisions:

Section A is devoted to stemware regularly carried in stock at the factory.

Section B is devoted to more informal stemware usually carried in stock at the factory.

Section C is devoted to custom-built stemware and special items usually retailed from this catalog or samples.

Section D is devoted to custom-built chalices retailed from this catalog or samples.

Section E is devoted to all occasional pieces, some of which are carried in stock at the factory, and others retailed from this catalog or samples.
